Mayor Calls For Investigation

Seaside Mayor B. J. Dolan, Jr. in an exclusive interview with the POST News-Sentinel corroborated reports that he has asked Monterey County District Attorney William Curtis to look into the matter of Councilman Oscar Lawson's refusal to heed the advice of Seaside City Attorney Carey Royster.

Specifically, Dolan stated in a letter to Curtis:

"1. Contrary to City Attorney's opinion and advice that any Council member, who is also a member of the Seaside Chamber of Commerce, could not legally vote on any money appropriation or subsidy to the Chamber of Commerce, Councilman Lawson did in fact vote to approve a $12,000 subsidy to the Chamber of Commerce.

"2. When this matter first arose, Councilman Cota and Councilman Ross voluntarily and publicly submitted their resignations from the Chamber of Commerce; however, Councilman Lawson declined to resign his Chamber membership and stated that he required an additional two weeks to research the matter.

"3. After two weeks had elapsed, Councilman Lawson did not resign from the Seaside Chamber of Commerce and subsequently voted in favor of the $12,000 subsidy. This was a deliberate act and demonstrates a serious contempt for the law.

"4. The City Attorney, Mr. Carey Royster, also rendered a written opinion on this to all

Council members that the law would in fact be violated in a Chamber member who is also a Council member voted for a monetary subsidy of public funds to the Chamber of Commerce.

"5. A full investigation of this matter is requested. It is my opinion that any Council member breaking the law or in violation of the law, notwithstanding whether he is black or white, should not flaunt the law with impunity.

"6. On 4 September, current, the undersigned personally verified with the Seaside Chamber of Commerce Executive Director, Verlaine Crawford, that Councilman Lawson is still a member of the Seaside Chamber of Commerce.

"7. Enclosed herewith are pertinent copies of Council Minutes on this matter, plus the written opinion of the City Attorney. The undersigned is willing to sign an affidavit or make any further deposition on this matter or any other matter."

Asked if this action results directly from differences which he has had with Lawson over the past few months, Dolan stated, "definitely not. When I accepted the mandate of the voters at which time I took the oath of office, I swore to uphold the laws of the United States and the State of California. When I notice a violation of the law, I'm bound to take action. Not only because of the oath I took, but my own inner conscience dictates it."

MPC Ethnic Studies Takes Open Classroom Approach

An "open classroom" approach to education is one of the major concepts being developed by the Monterey Peninsula College Ethnic Studies Division.

Jim Stevenson, ethnic studies division chairman, said the "open classroom" program will provide students with the opportunity to apply theories taught in a classroom atmosphere to practical situations which exist in the communities in which they reside.

Spearheading the innovations will be a new course in the field of sociology called Ethnic Studies 172: Social Movement. The course will deal with the progress being made in the areas of employment, housing, political and other areas by minorities and other disadvantaged people.

The ethnic studies staff is also working on other programs to:

- Motivate students to spend more of their leisure time familiarizing themselves with research and analysis of authors discussed in the classroom. The program also seeks to introduce minority students to library usage.

- Bring local "resource" personnel or specialists in community services into the classroom to discuss community projects.

For more information, contact Stevenson at 649-1150, ext. 388.

Symposium On Blind Services Held

Over seventy persons participated in a day long symposium focusing on the entire gamut of services available to blind individuals in Monterey and surrounding Counties held at the Blind Service Center, 225 Laurel in Pacific Grove recently.

Highlighting the program were discussions of innovative teaching techniques by inventor and teacher, Mrs. Lois Harrell of King City; a complete explanation of vision screening services available at no cost to anyone was proffered by Dr. Rick Hattori, O.D. a volunteer doctor at the Vision Rehabilitation Center in Santa Cruz; Mrs. Clorice Moreno, Volunteer Executive Director of Insight, Unlimited described the varied and imaginative activities of the group, composed entirely of blind youth and volunteers.

Mr. John Hormon, Sight Conservation Chairman of the Salinas Lions Club explained the Lions Eye foundation program which aids those who need eye care, including hospitalization and surgery, but are unable to afford it.

Several Blind Monterey Peninsula College students acknowledge the wide range of special services available to them and Ms. Nadine Davis, Special Counselor-Enabler at the College urged more blind and handicapped persons to pursue further educational goals.

Mr. George Barons, social worker and organizer of the Symposium, announced plans

Scholarship Forms Are Available

Assemblyman Bob Wood (R-Monterey) has announced that application forms for college scholarships are now available in his Salinas district office.

This begins the competition for California State Scholarships to be used in the 1975-1976 academic year which will be starting one year from now.

Wood said that approximately 13,500 new scholarships will be available for this year. Students may receive up to $2,500 per year. The exact amount is determined by the financial needs of the student and his family and the tuition charges at the school of his choice.

To be eligible for the scholarship, the applicant must be a resident of California, have not completed more than six semesters or nine quarters (or the equivalent) of college work prior to the use of the award, file a Parent's Confidential Financial Statement, and take the Scholastic Aptitude Test. The deadline for filing applications is November 22, 1974.

Assemblyman Wood pointed out that applications for two other state scholarship programs are also available: College Opportunity Grants and Occupational Education and Training Grants.

Applications for all of these programs may be obtained by either writing Assemblyman Bob Wood's Salinas office, 32 East Alisal Street, or by calling 424-1703.

All graduates of Seaside High School, classes of 1965 through 1974, are urged to attend the meeting.

Guest Editorial

by City Councilman Stephen E. Ross

The time has come, in my opinion, for some of us who are in public service to re-evaluate how we apply a major portion of our personal energies. My remarks are intended for SEASIDE "IN-HOUSE CONSUMPTION", and are directed to my fellow elected officials of Seaside - including myself and the immediate past mayor of Seaside - who are usually in the public eye.

I believe that some of us are spending too much energy attacking each other; either directly or by implication, instead of really and positively dealing with the problems at hand. (This, of course, is not to say that we are doing nothing - on the contrary, we are doing much). I am saying, however, that much remains to be done.

Our city is unique in many ways, which places a unique responsibility upon its elected officials. We have too many unmet needs in our city to spend time attacking each other. Inflation is eating away the economic well-being of our citizens like a cancer. Many of our businesses are suffering. Unemployment and underemployment is high in our city. Too many of our young men are turning to "hustling" for survival, because they don't have a job that will meet their needs. Too many of our young girls are "on the streets" (or on the black), basically for economic survival. Crime is still with us, our streets and parks are not as safe as they should be. The quality of life for many of our citizens needs improvement; which includes, but not limited to - better health care, child care, cultural recreational services, improved care for many senior citizens, to name a few. Some in-depth planning; both short and long range - is very much in order, in my opinion. If we have any excess energy, here is where it should go - not just for planning, but for acting it out.

We all know that each of us is an individual, with independent thinking processes. No two of us even come close to looking alike. We have no compelling reason, therefore, to shout it from the house-tops every other day to prove it. Each of us was elected to do our best for the people of Seaside, - as we see it. But each of us was elected to a "team" of five, to play the game (or fight the war) to win for OUR SIDE. And our side in this case is the whole of Seaside - every living person.

Yes, I know it is our obligation, as public officials, to keep each other "HONEST". (But I don't recall reading in any book which said that we must KILL each other to do it.)

You see, I do not subscribe to the theory which indicates: "The only good politician is (aside from myself, if his views are different from mine) is a dead politician."

Our city can ill-afford another paralysis by reason of division. I am therefore calling upon all of us who are in public service to do our individual bit to prevent such a happening. This appeal is extended to those who have been in public service and to those who hope and expect to enter public service.

(And to Mr. Ms. and Mrs. Private citizen - "WE NEED A LITTLE HELP FROM OUR FRIENDS".)

New Weapons In Battle Against Alcoholism

Some new weapons are being thrown into the battle against alcoholism by the California Medical Association.

The 25,000-member organization of physicians has just:

. Issued guidelines for care of alcoholics in five different types of alcoholism treatment facilities in the state.

. Offered to survey the quality of care available in alcoholism treatment facilities in California, under contract to the state's Office of Alcohol Program Management.

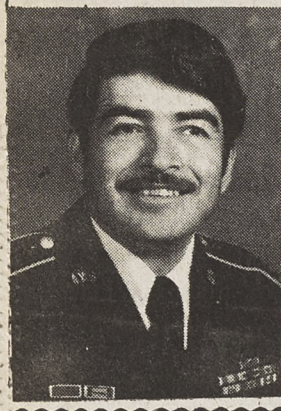

. Planned a workshop on alcoholism and other drug dependence for the chairmen of county medical societies' committees on the subject.

. Voted to cosponsor "Alcoholism, Drug Abuse and Mental Health: 1975," an annual conference originated by San Francisco's Haight-Ashbury Free Medical Clinics.

The CMA step-by-step guidelines for treatment of alcoholics give minimum standards for the admission, evaluation and treatment of alcoholics and for the administration, staffing and equipping of the treatment centers. The guidelines apply to alcoholism reception and referral facilities, outpatient and residential care facilities, and hospitals.

the guidelines were field-tested earlier this year by members of CMA's Committee on Alcoholism and Other Drug Dependence. They surveyed alcoholism treatment facilities in three counties.

TODAY'S ARMY OFFERS CONSTRUCTION JOBS

The Army has openings available for young men interested in construction work. Construction workers have an advantage over most other blue-collar workers because they can usually find high-paying jobs almost anywhere in the country or overseas.

Army combat engineers perform many of the same tasks that construction workers do. Although their first job is to provide engineering support such as bridge and road construction for combat troops, they are also trained to do other types of work such as reconnaissance and intelligence.

Some jobs require a combat engineer to transport, store and fire both land and underwater explosives. For this they receive special training to enable them to determine the proper charge to use for the desired effect.

They are taught how to use basic engineering equipment and hand tools and some are also taught how to prepare intelligence maps. Since much of their time is spent in the field, combat engineers must be able to construct roads, bridges and shelters from only the raw materials available in surrounding terrain. Converting trees into bridges and valleys into roadways requires a high degree of skill and ingenuity. TODAY'S ARMY conducts an eight-week training course for combat engineers at Ft. Leonard Wood in Missouri. After their training, combat engineers can select to serve in Europe, Hawaii, Alaska or almost any Army installation in the world.

They can also have their choice of a two, three or four year enlistment. If they select a four year enlistment, they are eligible to receive a $2500 cash bonus upon successful completion of their training. Further information can be obtained at our office at 431 Webster St. in Monterey

Auto Repair Gyps Can Be Stopped

In the trade it's called the "five o'clock surprise." Translated for the consumer, it means the mechanic told you in the morning that your car needed repairs that would cost $40 to $50. When you pick it up that afternoon you find the bill is actually two or three times the estimate. You need your car and you have no recourse; you've just received your five o'clock surprise. Maybe the charge is bona fide and maybe it's not. How can you tell?

Californians have discovered a way to avoid this dilemma, according to an article in the September issue of the Reader's Digest. Three years ago their state legislature established the nation's first Bureau of Automotive Repairs (B.A.R.) Created to monitor the auto-repair field, the B.A.R. requires that repair shops register with the bureau, give written estimates, and get owner authorization for repairs that exceed the original estimate. The shop's records must be open to inspection by the bureau, and

Pre-School Story Hour Sign-Ups Now

Children between the ages of three and one-half to five who are not in school, may register for the new session of the Pre-School Story Hours at the Salinas Public Library.

The weekly programs will offer simple folk tales and stories from modern picture books. Finger plays, singing, games, and activity songs are included to promote early experiences in group participation.

Because the younger child needs considerable attention, the story hour groups will be limited to twenty-five children.

Parents may enroll their children now at the John Steinbeck Library or the East Branch or El Gabilan branch Libraries in person or by telephone.

The eight week sessions are from 10:00-10:45 A.M. beginning Tuesday, September 17th at all three libraries. They will end November 5th.

Going to church can do more than comfort you. Church can be an energizing, healing experience in which fear and sin begin to fade, and new views of God and man appear.

At our services, your love of the Bible grows. Your understanding of God increases. And often, as a result, mental and physical problems are permanently healed.

violation of any of these requirements could lead to criminal charges or revocation of registration.

The B.A.R. now receives calls at the rate of 78,000 a year. Complaints are handled by consumer representatives who, although they have no legal power to force settlement, help negotiate disputes between the consumer and the repair shop.

The customer is not always right, of course, and an adjustment that is satisfactory to both parties may take several days of negotiation. In the absence of agreement, the customer is entitled to file a suit in small-claims court.

Most repair shops are honest, and outright fraud is not prevalent. So far, the B.A.R. has used its powers to revoke or suspend registration or file criminal charges fewer than 100 times. At the same time, California motorists, who spend $2.5 billion a year on auto repair, are protected against gyps, and the $3-million annual budget of the B.A.R. is financed largely by the registration fees of the auto-repair shops themselves.

Modified exhaust systems cause more than two-thirds of all vehicle noise violations, a California Highway Patrol survey of 45,828 vehicles shows.

The CHP made roadside spot checks throughout California during the weekends of August 9-11 and August 16-18, finding that 1114 — or one in 41 — vehicles emitted noise above legal standards.

"Sixty nine percent of the problem results from illegal modifications such as undersized high performance mufflers," Walter Pudinski said. "These violators are disregarding the law that prohibits any exhaust system change that produces more noise than the original equipment."

The most common offenders were motorcycles. One in nine emitted excessive noise. Passenger vehicles were next — one in 42 was a violator. Heavy trucks showed a violation rate of one in 75 — about half that of passenger vehicles.

Defective exhausts accounted for about one-quarter of all violations. Inadequate exhaust systems and miscellaneous defects were responsible for the balance. The survey was conducted by two and three-man CHP noise teams. One officer monitors a noise meter, signaling his partner when a violator passes.

Enforcement action was taken against 521 violators. No contact could be made with the balance because the pursuit officer was citing or warning one violator when another passed the meter.

Scouting Reemphasizes Patriotism

Patriotism has played an important role for nearly 65 years in the program of the Boy Scouts of America, but now there's a reemphasis for the 6,500 Cub Scout packs, Scout troops, and Explorer posts in this area.

Don Ostergard, President of the Monterey Bay Area Council, which serves Monterey, Santa Cruz and San Benito Counties cites "the greater need today for emphasis on patriotism as our Nation goes through a

NPS Concert Series Is Announced

The Naval Postgraduate School (NPS) Music Society has announced the program for its 1974 Friday Evening Concert Series.

On September 13, cellist Nathaniel Rosen will open the series with what is expected to be an exciting performance of classical, romantic and contemporary pieces for the cello. Included in his program are many works for cello which have not been widely performed.

Rosen has been called "a brilliant artist and a great virtuoso" by leading authorities in the music world. He has traveled throughout the United States and Europe as a soloist with orchestras, as a recitalist, and with chamber groups. High Fidelity Magazine says of Mr. Rosen, "He possesses a list of attributes matched by few...he demonstrates a big, singing tone, passionate gusto, faultless technique, and a sure grasp of structural design."

Tickets for this performance are on sale at the Postgraduate School's Student Mail Center and Abinante's Music Store in Monterey. Tickets are $3.50 each. The concert will be held at 8 p.m. in Ingersoll Hall on the NPS campus.

Findings On Small Car Safety

Small cars looking for trouble had better pick on somebody their own size and if they find it the occupants are far better off if they are wearing seat belts.

This can be concluded from a California Highway Patrol study of recent research on small car safety.

Other, more official conclusions:

--Your chances of having an accident are no greater in a car weighing less than 3,000 pounds than they would be in a heavyweight.

--If your small car does get into an accident, it is likely to give you less protection than a big one would -- the passenger compartment is smaller and the deceleration distance less.

--Your seatbelt in a small car will make you about as safe from death or serious injury as the unbelted occupant of a big car, if you wear the belt.

--A small car's occupants are at a serious disadvantage in a head-on collision with a big car; but a seat belt can shorten the odds, if it is worn.

Each Scouting unit and member is being encouraged to find new ways to "demonstrate love and affection for our country," Ostergard said, and during the bicentennial period to demonstrate new and more dramatic expressions of national pride.

Says Help School Safety Patrols

September signals the beginning of another school year and the appearance once more of the familiar school safety patrol, says the California State Automobile Association (AAA).

Safety patrol organizations are becoming increasingly important throughout the country. With more children entering school and more motor vehicles on the road, the safety contribution of patrols cannot be denied. Members of the safety patrol are qualified and have been well instructed in the field of pedestrian safety.

motorists is also needed. Drivers should slow down and be particularly alert at crossings and intersections near schools. Safety patrol members are learning a valuable lesson in citizenship and leadership development. Therefore, the obedience and respect of motorists will show patrol members what a worthwhile contribution their patrol work is to traffic safety.

THREE FACTS YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT PG&E RATE INCREASES.

ONE:

With only one exception, PG&E rate increases in the past three years have been to offset the higher prices we, PG&E, must pay for fuel oil and natural gas.

TWO:

PG&E rates must reflect the general overall inflation which affects everyone. We can no more control the costs of materials and services we have to pay for than you can control the cost of food, clothing, interest rates, etc.

THREE:

PG&E rates are among the lowest in the nation. Of the 13 largest U.S. cities, only Dallas and Houston have lower gas and electric rates than San Francisco.

Another Fact: You can hold down your utility bill by using energy wisely...conserving when and wherever you can.

$1 Billion More Needed Annually For Top Quality Education Says Riles

SACRAMENTO--State Superintendent of Public Instruction Dr. Wilson S. Riles has assigned himself the challenging job of convincing the people they should spend $1 billion more annually than the $4 billion they now spend on public schools.

That's the tab, said Riles in an interview with Education News Service, to fully implement the Serrano-Priest decision without ending up with an educational system of universal mediocrity. The decision says, in effect, that the use of property taxes to finance schools favors children from the wealthier districts.

"To simply take the money we have and divide it up would end up in mediocrity, in my opinion," said Riles. "I'm not interested in that kind of equality. I don't want people to be equally poor. We have to be very careful as we meet Serrano to insist on quality education for all children. To get a quality program for all youngsters we're talking about $1 billion in new money. We've got to convince the people that's what they need and want."

How is Riles going to convince the public? His main thrust is to point out that poor education is more costly in the long run because it merely helps to swell the ranks of the unemployed resulting in higher welfare and imprisonment costs.

"A large part of the problem starts not when a teenager enters the job market, but when a child enters school," he said. "What that school does for the child and does to him makes the difference between poverty and economic security... Welfare data shows the vast majority of recipients are lacking in the basic skills of reading, language and computation required for entry-level jobs... The educational levels of the population of correctional institutions reveal significant correlation between education, poverty and crime," Riles said.

A top quality program, Riles explained, is one that would provide each pupil with a marketable skill, and understanding of his relationship to the political process, and the ability to survive and thrive in the world beyond school.

"We cannot feel our task complete until we know that each young adult leaving our schools has a job which is the first step on a career ladder or he is enrolled in an institution of higher learning," Riles declared.

Riles stressed, however, we must avoid such piecemeal, fragmented approaches such as vouchers, performance contracts and other

"political" gimmicks, because they will not work.

"Tinkering is not getting at the heart of the matter," he declared. "There are over 1,000 school districts in this state. We spend $4 billion on education. We have 100,000 teachers. We have a system. If it is not responding, we ought to make it respond and not go off on tangents and fool everybody."

What's at the heart of the matter? Riles say it's the need to reform and revitalize the system so it will reach all pupils with effective education in basic skills, marketable skills and practical skills.

"We know that kids can make it without failure providing teachers have the tools and flexibility to intervene with individual students and call on whatever resources needed to solve the learning problem, rather than the teacher having no choice but to move the child to the next grade."

This, he said, is being proved by the Early Childhood Education program which got underway in a limited number of school districts this year.

Riles said the program is showing some "exciting results." Among them is that parents are getting a better understanding of school because they are working with the teachers in solving their child's learning problems and in planning classroom activities.

Of this, Riles said: "Any principal or superintendent who doesn't support this kind of effort is missing the greatest chance he's ever had to build good public support for education."

This program, which Riles says, is also having an "exciting carryover" to the other elementary grades, is only one of a number of priorities aimed at improving the public schools. Recently, for example, Riles announced the appointment of a 36-member citizen Commission on Reform of Intermediate and Secondary Education. The commission is charged with considering changes that would help the junior and senior high schools become more responsible to the educational needs of the future.

"Experts seem to agree that junior and senior high schools are boring, ineffective for a large number of students, and out of step with the real world needs, and light years behind current social changes," Riles said, "all of which contribute to campus apathy, vandalism and high dropout rates."

Also included in Riles' priorities for reforms is support of Career Education which many local school districts are now moving into.
